All items on heating instructions are fully cooked. Instructions are approximate and it is recommended to check on items throughout the reheating process.

Prime Rib

Place in a preheated 300-degree oven for approximately 20 to 30 minutes, depending on the size of the piece. The USDA recommends that reheated meat reach an internal temperature of 160 degrees, which is well beyond medium rare at 140 degrees. Let rest before being sliced and served, at least 10 minutes to allow the juices to be reabsorbed into the meat.
